

Title: Programme Manager, Data Strategy & GDPR
Location: London
Type : Permanent
Salary: £90000-120000
Reference: 10543

Profile:

Our client is a leading Banking Group who are looking to appoint a Programme Manager to develop their data strategy and lead its implementation across the Bank.

Reporting to the Head of Change, as Programme Manager you will be responsible for leading the bank wide data programme, managing a complex multi-workstream programme to implement data strategy, standards and governance. This is a critical programme developing the Banks response to General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) embedding the business and technology changes required by GDPR. As the Programme Manager, you will have accountability for building out the programme of work, understanding business requirements and translating these into a pragmatic and workable business solution, whilst meeting best practice standards and regulatory requirements for Data and GDPR. You will be required to deliver the programme, providing the business with assurance on a critical regulatory programme, whilst engaging with a diverse group of stakeholders across multiple divisions and business lines.

The ideal candidate will be a high performing Programme Manager with experience delivering similar Programmes with a strong Data or Data Protection component. Experience on a similar programme would be preferred along with an understanding of the regulatory requirements for GDPR within a financial services firm. You should have a proven background building successful and sustainable coalitions to drive and deliver complex programmes of change, with experience establishing PMO/Project Governance structures and aligning centralised project delivery models to key business objectives. People and programme leadership capability are key components of this challenging role.
